

IML are moving!

Industrial Measurements Ltd are moving from our Castle Donington site to join our sister company Crane Electronics in Hinckley.

We are delighted to announce that from Monday 16th January IML will be relocating to a larger premises in Hinckley, Leicestershire; bringing us under the same roof as our sister company Crane Electronics Ltd.

The move will not only grant us the additional space we have needed for some time to expand into, but it will also allow us to work much closer with our colleagues at Crane, helping us to provide an even more comprehensive and complete solution to all of our customers.

We are delighted that the existing sales, engineering and production team at IML will all be moving with us meaning your usual daily contacts will remain the same.

In order to ensure a smooth transition with minimal disruption, we ask that all of our customers update their records and their invoicing / payment systems to reflect our new address. Please note that all banking and company details will remain the same and our service and commitment to our customers will stay as strong as ever.

The move to Hinckley will allow both IML and Crane to work closer together than ever before and enable us to develop new products and work within new markets.

The move will also result in larger Engineering & Production departments to increase our potential output. In the near future we also hope to have a fully functional demonstration room to present, train and test our products with customers.
